J.D. Salinger sues anonymous sequel author

J.D. Salinger has sued an anonymous author whose new book has been described as a sequel to Salinger's famous work, "The Catcher in the Rye." Lawyers for Salinger filed suit in federal court in Manhattan this week. It seeks to force a recall of what it says is a copycat book titled "60 Years Later" by someone writing under the name John David California. It also seeks unspecified damages. The lawsuit said the right to create a sequel to the book or to use the character "Holden Caulfield" belongs only to Salinger and that Salinger has "decidedly chosen not to exercise that right." "To me, this is a story about an old man. It's a love story, a story about an author and his character," said California, a pen name for the anonymous author.

Neil Diamond to perform 'Sweet Caroline' with Boston Pops

Boston's Fourth of July celebration will include a performance by Neil Diamond, whose "Sweet Caroline" is an anthem of sorts for Red Sox fans. Diamond will join conductor Keith Lockhart and the Boston Pops for the traditional concert and fireworks spectacular on the Charles River Esplanade. That's not far from Fenway Park, where fans sing along with "Sweet Caroline" during every game and where Diamond played a concert last summer. The final hour will be televised nationally by CBS from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Local model lands finalist spot

Shelly Marks of Chagrin Falls is one of 10 finalists competing for a modeling contract in the second season of TV Land's reality show competition "She's Got the Look."

The show, which premieres at 9 p.m. Thursday, June 11, is a collaboration with Wilhelmina Models Inc. and focuses on models over the age of 35. The winner will sign with Wilhelmina, nab a fashion spread in Self magazine and earn a check for $100,000.

Marks is 39, the mother of two and recently divorced. In a press release, she says she's doing the competition for her children. "I hope to show them anything is possible at any age," she says.

Judges for the eight-episode show include former supermodels Kim Alexis and Beverly Johnson, stylist Robert Verdi and Wilhelmina president Sean Patterson.

Beauty deal

For the first time in its history, the upscale beauty brand June Jacobs is offering its professional supersized products at wholesale prices to the public.

The jumbo-size products, which are used in spas around the world, offer great discounts by volume. For instance, the Creamy Cranberry Cleanser is $68 for 32 fluid ounces, a savings of 34 percent (regular-size bottles would cost more than $200 for a comparable amount). The top-selling Tea & Cucumber Body Balm is $77 ($238 at retail sizes) and the Grapefruit Purifying Shower Gel is $46 ($143 at retail). Order them online at junejacobs.com through the end of the summer.
